My dear Friends,

We were all shattered at the news of the sudden death of the Bishop of Salisbury, an event which has been in the forefront of our minds during recent weeks. After his breakdown through overwork he seemed to be so much better and looked so much fitter than he had done for some years that we all felt happy about his health. Unfortunately he was taken suddenly ill with an aneurysm which proved fatal in a very short time.

He will be very greatly missed not as an administrator, for this he never claimed to be, but for himself as a man of great kindness and understanding whom we all loved. Much has been written of his life and himself and written far more ably than I could ever do, so I do not propose to write more here, but what I have done is to lift, unashamedly, an excellent obituary notice which appeared in the Church Times and to publish it in a later page. I hope you will read it as it tells of a man full of love, who spent his time in taking other people's burdens on his own shoulders, which after all is the way of the true Christian.

We send our sympathy to the family of Mrs. Macdonald of Egdon Close, who died so suddenly and trust they will find the help and comfort they need at such a sad time for them.

We also send our good wishes to Mr. H. Carter Jonas, who has just had a serious operation in Southampton Hospital. At the moment of writing he is progressing fairly satisfactorily and trust that his recovery will proceed according to plan.

We also miss our Parish Clerk, Mr. E. Rawbone, who is not at all well at the present time and do hope he will soon feel better and will be back with us again. Please remember all these people in your prayers, and those too who must be anxious about them.

As we go to press the violence in Northern Ireland seems to have flared up again with increased vigour, and, alas, at the moment there seems to be no solution. One's heart goes out to those who wish to take no sides but are caught up in the general conflagration, and we need to think also of the British Army, who use the utmost restraint in a most difficult situation, and yet are a kind of 'Aunt Sally' for both sides to hurl abuse at, and are considered fair game to be attacked with every kind of weapon from stones to rockets. We the ordinary people of this country can only pray, and perhaps that is the only real solution, that God will change men's hearts.

Your sincere friend & Vicar,

PAUL TRANTER.

IN MEMORIAM

BISHOP FISON OF SALISBURY

The Right Rev. Joseph Edward Fison, Bishop of Salisbury since 1963, died in hospital on Sunday afternoon. He was sixty-six.

The Bishop, who was a graduate of Queens' College, Oxford (where he took seconds in Mods and Greats and a first in theology), was trained for the ministry at Wycliffe Hall. While still a layman he taught in the English College in Cairo and he returned to Wycliffe as tutor and chaplain after his ordination in 1934.

During the war he saw service as an Army chaplain in the Middle East, and as senior chaplain in Jerusalem guided thousands of Service personnel round the Holy Places.

His post-war appointments took him to Rochester Cathedral as a residentiary canon (1945-52); to Truro as Sub-Dean (1952-59); and to Cambridge, where he followed the present Bishop of Southwark as Vicar of Great St. Mary's, the University church.

There he continued to display the zest for life, buoyancy of spirit, genius for friendship and spontaneous gaiety that had characterised the whole of his ministry. His stay was comparatively short-lived, however, for he was called to succeed Bishop W. L. Anderson at Salisbury after only three years at Cambridge.

Dr. F. W. Dillistone, formerly Dean of Liverpool writes:

"I have never forgotten the first time I met Joe Fison. It was outside the old Hannington Hall in Oxford in his first term as an undergraduate. The voice that was to become so familiar was already resounding along New Inn Hall Street: the fire that was to burn for more than forty years was already exercising an irresistible attraction upon those who were to become his friends.

"His first in theology showed that he possessed a finely disciplined mind and an ability to apply his profound knowledge of the Bible to whatever questions - historical, critical or personal - might arise. For a period afterwards he tended to be confined within what proved to be too narrow an orthodoxy. Then, partly as a result of travel overseas, he broke loose and from that time onwards spent himself in joyful proclamation of the gospel and in an intense concern for the needs of individuals.

"He would startle; he would shock; he would sometimes offend; but few could resist the utter self-giving by which he poured himself out towards all of whatever race, class or belief with whom he came into contact.

"He loved the Old Testament prophets and felt a deep affinity with Martin Buber, their modern successor. This perhaps helped him to enter the more deeply into the struggles and faith-victories of St. Paul. Indeed, I can think of no one in recent times who so closely paralleled in his own experience and ministry the pattern of life which the New Testament reveals as having been that of the apostle himself: journeying, preaching, writing, and finally taking upon himself the care of all the churches in a great diocese.

"But most of all, in relation to his family, to his friends, to a vast circle in and outside the Church, the words of St. Paul seem exactly to apply: 'Who is weak and I am not weak? Who is offended and I burn not?' He was constrained, consumed by the love of Christ. Of few could it be so truly said that he burned himself out in the service of God and of his fellow-men".

CHURCH GARDEN PARTY.

On Page 3 are printed the accounts of the 1972 Garden Party held at Summerrods on the last Saturday in June.

While the day was without rain, as the afternoon went on it became bitterly cold and most people found it impossible to stand about for long.

In spite of the weather every event took place as planned and again we achieved an all time record total. Congratulations and thanks to all those who worked so hard and enthusiastically to produce such a result on such an uninviting day.

We were most grateful to Lady Lees who opened the event for us and gave us a good start with such a splendid talk and also many thanks to Brigadier and Mrs. Tadman for opening their garden for us and all the help they gave in so many ways.

Has anyone any novel ideas for next year? If so now is the time to make them known, so that when the time comes we can get off to a fair start.
